FlyNamibia Announces Exciting New Route Connecting Windhoek, Walvis Bay and Cape Town, South Africa

FlyNamibia is thrilled to announce the launch of its newest route, connecting Windhoek and Walvis Bay, Namibia, to Cape Town, South Africa. This exciting addition to FlyNamibia's network is set to provide travellers with convenient access to these incredible destinations, while also bolstering regional connectivity.

Starting from 29 October 2023, FlyNamibia will operate flights on this new route every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday. The new route's flights will run from Hosea Kutako International Airport (HKIA) to Cape Town (CPT), and onwards to Walvis Bay (WVB). From here the flight will then link back to Hosea Kutako International Airport, back to Walvis Bay, onward to Cape Town and returning once again to Hosea Kutako International. Thus the CPT-WVB route will be extended from WVB to HKIA and then back to WVB, providing WVB with flights to Windhoek once again. This will enable connecting traffic from all flights inbound to HKIA to fly to WVB.

FlyNamibia's new route will open doors for tourism, trade, and personal connections between these vibrant locations.

"We believe this route will not only serve the needs of our valued customers but also contribute to the growth and development of our country and the region."

With this new route, FlyNamibia looks forward to connecting more people and fostering positive experiences, while continuing to be a reliable partner for business and leisure travellers in the region.
