Dear Esteemed Business Partner,

After what has seemed a rather long winter in the Southern Hemisphere, we now look forward to enjoying our spring and summer seasons, and for many of us we look forward to planning our annual vacations too. At same time, the Lufthansa Group airlines have been working hard to optimize our European winter flight plan for 2022/2023.

First and foremost, in our premium airline offering, Lufthansa will continue its daily flights between Frankfurt and Johannesburg and SWISS will resume daily flights between Zurich and Johannesburg, as these flights remain the commercial backbone for Lufthansa Group in South Africa. For the Western Cape, Lufthansa has restructured its flight schedules between Frankfurt and Cape Town as well as between Munich and Cape Town for the upcoming European winter flight plan. The Frankfurt – Cape Town flight capacity will be scaled back from five weekly flights to three weekly flights, whilst at the same time we welcome back our seasonal Munich – Cape Town flight and increase this capacity from five weekly flights to seven weekly flights, using our state-of-the-art Airbus A350. With the A350 our customers can also look forward to enjoying more comfort, a sense of spaciousness, a new lighting concept as well as digital innovations. The aircraft also contributes significantly to our goal as an airline group to reduce our CO₂ footprint and achieve carbon neutrality.

Our seasonal flights offered by our Swiss leisure airline Edelweiss, will once again return, offering our customers direct flights between Zurich and Cape Town, three times a week. As previously communicated, we are very excited about the latest and brand new destination to be served in South Africa by Lufthansa Group. Starting 15 November 2022, Eurowings Discover will commence direct flights between Frankfurt and Mbombela, Kruger National Park, with a short stopover in Windhoek three times a week.

Due to the nature of our business, we understand that our industry is an ever-changing environment, where it's not always easy to keep ahead of the many different supplier schedules and product offerings. Therefore, we have created an easy to read overview of all Lufthansa Group flight schedules on the following page, which will be implemented with the upcoming European winter flight plan 2022/2023.
