

Kruger National Park Hides, Picnic Sites, Lookouts and other Get-out Points Access for Guests with Mobility Challenges

There are many hides, picnic sites, lookout platforms and get-out points throughout the park at destinations where visitors may alight from their vehicles at their own risk in the relative safety of a designated structure or area, some for the purpose of viewing wildlife or scenery, others for places of historical interest or just for relaxing and abluting. Animals are incredibly coy at the sound of a vehicle, so sitting quietly in such places is often very productive, particularly at hides that are located by water sources. Visitors should note that the hides have gates at their entrances with high pressure springs to ensure they remain closed to prevent marauding animals. These gates are difficult to open and pass through in a wheelchair and companion assistance is recommended. Guests should also be aware that as the hides have no attendant permanently present and as certain animals are attracted to human excrement, the park has made an ecological decision not to provide toilets at hides (with the exception of the sleepover hides). Picnic Sites with their resident attendants do have ablutions. See commentary on the accessibility for mobility impaired guests at each get-out point in the Park below.
